

Angus McCrone, New Energy Finance

Angus McCrone is New Energy Finance's Chief Editor and is based in London. He has 18 years' experience as a financial writer at national newspaper level, writing extensively on subjects such as the markets, derivatives, economics and investment, as well as most business sectors, for the Sunday Times, the Evening Standard, Sunday Business, Sunday Telegraph and The Scotsman.

He has also worked part-time for eight years as a senior economist for Centre for Economics and Business Research, and as founder and director of an FSA authorised financial services company. He holds the Securities Institute's Certificate in Investment Management.