

John Birchmore

John Birchmore (Managing Director) has a BSc in Resource Management from Edinburgh University, an MF in Forestry Economics from the University of British Columbia and an MPhil in Development Economics from University of East Anglia. He is highly experienced in the promotion of EfW and biomass projects in the UK and overseas, covering a selection of technology, waste supply, environmental and planning issues as well as economic appraisal. He has worked world wide in industry and subsequently for a number of major clients including large private companies, the World Bank, FAO, Asian Development Bank, British Government, UNDP and USAID as well as numerous small businesses and has helped establish and develop joint venture businesses in the UK and overseas, including a number of company start-ups and developments in the UK, Latvia and Russia. He is currently engaged in renewable energy projects in UK, Latvia, Russia, Albania and Ghana.